

He himself courts his own ruin

Mr. Henry Purcell

He him-self courts his own ru - in, that with too great pas - sion flies 'em: When Men whine too much in woo-ing, Wo - men will like Coc - quets use 'em: Some by this way of ad-dres-sing

6

11

have the Sex so far trans-port-ed, that they'll fool a - way the bles-sing for the pride of be - ing court-ed.

17

Jilt and smile when we a - dore'em, While some Block-head buys the fa-vour; Pre - sents have more po - wer o'er 'em Than all our soft Love and La-bour. Thus, like Zea - lots with screw'd Fa - ces,

22

27

We our fool-ing make the great-er, While we cant long wind - ded Gra-ces O - thers they fall to the Crea-ture.
